A note from the editor

The Spectator is the most influential magazine in Britain. With nearly 100,000 subscribers, we reach the country's most important decision-makers, thought leaders and influencers and shape the national debate. We provide the best and most insightful writing on politics, global affairs, culture and lifestyle anywhere in the English-speaking world. Wit, insight, and elegance of expression are our hallmarks.

Our website, podcasts and newsletters reach more than two million people every week and make the weather in Westminster, Whitehall, the City and academia. We break the big political stories and provide the most authoritative analysis of current events.

The Spectator is growing – recruiting brilliant young writers, providing more news and more in-depth commentary, bringing news-making interviews to a wider audience and telling the truth fearlessly.

Our story

Always at the heart of current affairs and Westminster

1828

The first issue is published.

Mission statement:

'The principal object of a newspaper is to convey intelligence. It is proposed in The Spectator to give this, the first and most prominent place, to a report of all the leading occurrences of the week. In this department, the reader may always expect a summary account of every public proceeding, or transaction of interest, whether the scene may lie at home or abroad.'

1861

The magazine becomes the only UK publication to back the north against the slave-owning south in the American Civil War. Almost goes bust as a result.

1957

Campaigns for the decriminalisation of homosexuality – again, against most of the British press (we're later dubbed 'The Bugger's Bugle' by the Sunday Express).

2013

Announces that the magazine will not sign up to state press regulation, even if this means breaking the law.

2016

Comes out in support of Brexit and publishes its butterfly cover – one of the most widely recognised images of the referendum.

2021

Sales overtake The Guardian.

2024

Celebrates the 40th anniversary of The Spectator* Parliamentary of the Year Awards. The awards are regularly attended by sitting prime ministers, leaders of the opposition and MPs.

2018

Hosts sold out event at the London Palladium, the only publication to do so.

1906

Forms its own 'army' – The Spectator Experimental Company, funded by readers' donations. The model was later used to set up the Territorial Army.

1831

Plays an active role in the 'great business' of reforming parliament, which led the next year to the Great Reform Act.

2012

The Evening Blend is launched. It is now the UK's most read politics newsletter, with more than 156,000 subscribers.

1975

Argues for a 'No' vote in the referendum on the European Community.

2007

22 Old Queen Street becomes home.

2015

Coffee House Shots is launched. Originally meant to run just for the election, the daily podcast was so successful it was made permanent.

The term 'virtue-signalling' is coined – one of the many terms invented by Spectator writers and now used across the world ('the Establishment' is another).

2020

Becomes the first magazine in the world to publish a 10,000th issue.

Spectator TV is launched. It now has more than 440k+ subscribers.

2024

OQS MEDIA

OQS Media, owner of UnHerd, acquires The Spectator and Apollo magazine in record-breaking sale.

2024

Leads the charge to prevent foreign state ownership of the British press – resulting in a new law.

Digital has transformed The Spectator

Spectator events

Why work with The Spectator?

The Spectator has consistently organised the most insightful, interesting and in-demand events in Westminster and beyond. Our events draw on our writers and wider Rolodex to bring together the best people to the table.

We have worked closely with business leaders, corporates and other partners to elevate policy issues, convene exceptional audiences, spark new debates and – where necessary – ruffle some feathers.

From roundtables to awards ceremonies, our in-house events team prides itself on delivering exceptional quality events – no matter the size.

ECONOMIC INNOVATOR OF THE YEAR AWARDS

Summer Party

PARLIAMENTARIAN OF THE YEAR AWARDS

Our networking events

Since our formation in the coffee houses of 18th-century London, The Spectator has always believed in the power of getting the right people together in the right room.

Nothing captures this better than our annual Summer Party, which brings together the movers and shakers in Westminster and beyond. Where else can you find Rachel Reeves alongside Piers Morgan and Nigel Farage? Jordan Peterson in the same room as Emily Maitlis? Or Wes Streeting and Angela Rayner hobnobbing with their Conservative predecessors?

Other high-calibre events in our calendar include our Parliamentarian of the Year Awards, which brings together the great and good of Westminster – and makes them squirm in their seats.

But perhaps the most fruitful discussions are those that take place in private, through the dozens of roundtables, high-level panel events, salons and drinks receptions we host each year.

Meanwhile, our annual Innovator of the Year Awards has raised the profile of British businesses that channel that coffee house spirit of creativity, insight and optimism.

‘The Innovator awards
have consistently unearthed
hidden gems’

Clive Bowden,
founder and director of Governance360

‘An unmissable event on the social and political calendar’

New York Magazine,

‘It’s a brilliant event and there’s a proper range of politicians from across the political spectrum’

Our consumer events

From our live podcasts and debates, to parties and wine clubs, our events bring together thousands of our friends, readers and subscribers each year.

Our live editions of the Coffee House Shots andAmericano podcasts have hosted top-tier speakers, while our annual Budget Briefings combine the sharpest political and financial analysis with questions from our highly informed audience.

Our specialist policy summits – which have tackled topics including the NHS, the future of defence, and net zero – have brought together the highest calibre of speakers from Whitehall and the business world. We seek to hold discussions that are provocative but not polemical, with our guests chosen for their insight and intelligence, rather than their ability to toe the party line.

Beyond politics, our ‘In Conversation’ events have hosted some of the world’s most in-demand thinkers. Meanwhile, our annual carol service (at St Bride’s, Fleet Street) and wine clubs (at Old Queen Street) have become fixtures in the diaries of our readers.

The Spectator Post-Budget Briefing

The annual Post-Budget event invites readers to listen as the Spectator team dissect the chancellor’s budget. The discussion is followed by a Q&A and a G&T – or two. Sponsors have the opportunity to join the panel and benefit from a branded promotional campaign.

The Spectator’sAmericano Live

Our sell-out live podcasts attract a highly engaged Spectator reader. Each event is promoted through an in-house marketing campaign using our print, digital and social channels. All shows are then uploaded to our YouTube channel with over 440k subscribers.

A Greener Future for the North

Spectator summits bring together industry experts, academics and MPs to discuss the topics that matter to you. We offer partners co-branding opportunities on pre- and post-event marketing, client representation on the panel and invitations for the sponsors staff and clients.

What makes us different

Brand consistency

The Spectator stands for intelligence, humour, irreverence, originality and diversity of opinion. Our values are projected throughout the magazine, broadcast shows and our sell-out events.

Innovation

A culture of journalistic entrepreneurs at the centre of a nimble organisation driving new ways to serve our subscribers.

Unrivalled growth

The Spectator saw subscriptions double in a magazine market that fell by two-thirds. We overtook The Guardian in 2021.

Collaboration

Our business model is unique and is based on close collaboration between commercial, events and editorial, ensuring brand cohesion with our partners.

Integrity

Our research team applies the most robust pre-publications scrutiny on Fleet Street – mindful that it matters more than ever that readers can trust the facts they read.

Relevance

Britain's most influential magazine, with analysis read, and listened to by those who run the country and those who advise them. Found in Buckingham Palace and Wetherspoons.

Digital success

A renowned print magazine taken by 55% of subscribers. However, 80% of our subscribers read our digital daily, non-magazine content.

Heritage

The world's longest consciously running weekly, influential for almost 200 years, going against the grain to stand by its beliefs; from playing active roles in reforming parliament in 1831 to leading the charge to ensure British press could never fall into the hands of foreign state owners in 2024.
